Hickory, also known as Pecan, is a member of the Walnut family. Grown in the Eastern U.S., it is the hardest, heaviest and strongest American wood species. "Mild to wild" Hickory is known for dramatic contrasts of light to dark wood, often within a single board.

Colors may vary widely as well, from nearly white or tan to reddish brown or dark brown. Burls, water stains and sound knots will also appear. These distinctive features create an interesting grain pattern that creates a sense of movement throughout a room.

Hickory and Rustic Hickory are offered in both Sky Valley Framed and Euro frameless in a wide variety of door styles and stain colors.

Rustic Hickory has the same attributes as Hickory, with even more intense color variations, color streaks, knots and burls, as well as extreme grain patterns.
